Ross & Baruzzini Launches Client Focused Website

Award winning engineering firm boosts web presence with latest technology.

SAINT LOUIS, MO, September 21, 2007 – Ross & Baruzzini is pleased to announce the launch of its new and improved website. The site, www.rossbar.com, offers expanded content, added site options and enhanced navigation and usability. Among its many new features, the website includes updated project information, latest company news and comprehensive information about integrated services provided by Ross & Baruzzini.

“We are excited to unveil the new corporate website,” said Craig Toder, President and CEO of Ross & Baruzzini. “The site affords visitors a significant amount of information about the resources and depth of the firm and allows us to better communicate who we are in the marketplace.”

Ross & Baruzzini’s site utilizes a cutting-edge web application framework that offers enhanced functionality, security, and customization options. The site also features a state-of-the-art content management system, allowing Ross & Baruzzini staff to interactively manage and update the content of the site using an easy-to-use and secure web interface.
