Ross & Baruzzini Hires Senior Project Manager/Security Engineering Specialist

SAINT LOUIS, MO, (September 23, 2008) - Ross & Baruzzini, Inc. is pleased to announce that Nader Sayegh has been hired as Senior Project Manager and Security Engineering Specialist. Sayegh will also direct operations for the newly opened Orlando office.

With 22 years of extensive system engineering/design and systems integration experience, Sayegh has focused on integrated security systems, control systems, and command and control centers both nationally and internationally. He has managed construction installations and commissioning for large and small scale security and IT systems; and has applied rigorous configuration management techniques to ensure system functionalities were identified, managed and tested. Prior to joining Ross & Baruzzini, Sayegh led his own consulting firm and most recently worked for SAIC as a Program Manager and senior level Electrical Engineer.

“We are very pleased that Nader has joined the Ross & Baruzzini team. His background will bring an exceptional level of expertise to our clients and reaffirms our commitment to provide state-of-the-art security and special systems solutions to our clients,” commented Bill Overturf, Senior Vice President for Ross & Baruzzini.

Sayegh earned his BS in Electrical Engineering from the University of Maryland and is currently a member of Building Industry Consulting Service (BICSI) and the American Society for Industrial Security (ASIS).
